—Wizard Oil at Geo. Thaxter's.
—The Chronicle comes to the rescue of Frank Bell. Significant circumstance.

—Misses Bella Ennor and Alice E. Johnson, of Eureka, are guests of Senator and Mrs. Koley, at the Ormsby House.

—No sufferer from any scrofulous disease, who will fairly try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, need despair of a cure. It will purge the blood of all impurities, thereby destroying the germs from which scrofula is developed, and infuse new life and vigor throughout the whole organization.

—Some say "Consumption can't be cured." Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, as proved by forty years' experience, will cure this disease when not already advanced beyond the reach of medical aid. Even then its use affords very great relief, and ensures refreshing sleep.

LEWIS MORRISON AND CELIA ALSBERG.—This afternoon and evening closes a remarkable engagement at the Tabor Grand. At the matinee to-day will be presented "Faust and Marguerite," which is undoubtedly one of the most unequivocal hits ever presented in this city. The play itself deals with the great German master's work in a most scholarly manner, all the beauties of the original being retained, and the tiresome and unnecessary passages being eliminated. Certainly no play has ever been more beautifully mounted, or such lavish care shown in the complicated settings. They show that neither money nor pains have been spared by Mr. Morrison in mounting this beautiful play. As for the acting we only can say that Mr. Morrison has given us a revelation in "Mephistopheles." It is one of the most artistic characterizations, both in conception and delineation that has ever been seen in Denver. As for Miss Alsberg's Marguerite, it is the best thing she has ever done and that is saying a great deal. The supporting company is fully up to the requirements, and are competent, which cannot be said of many of the traveling companies.—Denver News.
Will appear at the Carson Opera House on the 13th instant.

AN OUTSIDE VIEW.

A California Journal on Nevada's Choice.

The Bulletin of the 6th prints the following on Senator Stewart. The Bulletin is one of the leading anti railroad papers of California:

Wm. M. Stewart has received the caucus nomination of the Republicans of the Legislature of Nevada for the vacant Senatorship. He will undoubtedly be elected when the proper time comes around. Mr. Stewart has already served two terms in the Senate from that State. He is a statesman of ripe experience, a lawyer of great ability, and a miner. More than all this, perhaps, he is an economist of discernment, and is a complete master of the intricate financial questions in which Nevada has such a deep interest. Some remarkably able papers on the subject of the Money Standards, and the proper place of silver, have emanated from his pen. In some respects he goes further than the general body of conservative economists, but he is not too radical for the interests of his State. Mr. Stewart is not a rich man. He has not been able for a long time to occupy the house which he built in Washington during his first term. It has been leased for years past to the Chinese Legation.

The new Senator from Nevada will be the peer of any man who now has a seat in the Senate. His selection for the place removes the stigma which Eastern journals, in the excess of their Pharisaism, have sought to affix to his State. In Mr. Stewart's case there can, for the reasons stated, be no allegation of corrupt practices. We do know that there was more solid ground for charges of purchased Senatorships in other cases than can be found in many Senatorial contents at the East. There is quite a sprinkling of millionaires in the Senate, but they do not all hail from Nevada. There is room for the assertion that the Northern Pacific, the Standard Oil Company and other great corporations are more thoroughly represented there than any State or group of States. If Nevada has sent rich men to the Senate they have, in some cases at least, been exceptionally able men, and thoroughly identified with her interests. But she has also sent to Washington men of ability, with little more capital than their brains. The memory of Senator Nye is still cherished at the Capital of the nation, nor has Stewart's work, in the memorable days of Reconstruction—the Stewart who now goes back to resume his Legislative labors—been wholly forgotten.

The East rarely removes the beam from its eye when it is considering the affairs of the Far West. It pretends to view matters from a lofty elevation of virtue and civilization. It adopts the same tone toward us, which the English press used to assume with reference to the United States. It exaggerates all our faults, while at the same time it is wholly oblivious to its own short-comings. When the past is called up for review the Pacific States, comparatively young as they are, need dread no comparison between the statesmen whom they have sent to the National Councils with the general run of the line functionaries at the East. The roll of California Senators can be called without much misgiving as to the result, Fremont, Gwin, Weller, Latham, Broderick, McDougall, Sargent, Booth—and in later years Farley, Miller and Stanford—are entitled to rank with any of the public men of their period. Some of them, indeed, tower largely above the average Senator. Nor has Oregon been at all behind hand. Newsmith, Williams and Corbett could hold their own with the foremost Senators of their time. E. D. Baker, during his brief but meteoric Senatorial career, was, as to oratory and the accomplishments which go to make up individual power, head and shoulders above his contemporaries. The State which now has as its Representatives in the Senate Mitchell and Dolph is not retrograding.

Many of these men have impressed their opinions on the legislation of the country. Gwin aided powerfully in the development of the young State which had so suddenly leaped into life on the Pacific Coast. McDougall, brilliant but unfortunate, did more in early time to create public sentiment which resulted in the construction of the Pacific railroads than any man of his day. J. P. Jones of Nevada, whatever else is to be said of him, did much for the dissemination of correct views about silver, at a time when the subject was but imperfectly understood. It is not pretended that every Senator, sent from every State of the Pacific, was a credit to the place and the State which he represented. There have been a few notorious misfits in the case of Senators who had more money than brains. Nevada had some experience in that line. The most exciting topic of discussion at this date is whether California is to add to the small, but exasperating list. But whatever may take place, one thing is certain—in Wm. M. Stewart the Republicans of the Senate will have not only an additional vote, but a great accession of political power. With Mitchell and Dolph of Oregon, Jones and Stewart of Nevada and Stanford of California, the line from the Pacific may be said to be strong, but it is not long enough, nor powerful enough to admit to its ranks a man who has no qualifications at all for the place to which he aspires, unless the attachment to it of the champion panegyrist of the United States is considered to be an overwhelming necessity.

THE SENATORSHIP.

How Hearst's Candidacy is Regarded in Washington City.

WASHINGTON, January 6.—The members of the California delegation, who had looked upon Hearst's election as inevitable, are beginning to believe that the postponement of the election indicates the possible choice of another Democrat for the place. The members have been compelled to undergo considerable bantering from their associates in the Senate and House on the lack of material in the State, which should make it necessary to choose a man so unfitted for the high office as Hearst. The nomination of ex-Senator Stewart by the Nevada Republicans is made a matter of comment, and contrasts with the probable action of the California Legislature. That a comparative insignificant State like Nevada should elect one of her best citizens for the Senate, and that California should choose a man totally unfitted by training and habits for such a responsible position, is something that the California delegation cannot explain satisfactorily to their associates in the Senate or House.

The Anti-Treating Act.

Senator Briggs, of White Pine, has introduced a bill to repeal the Act passed by the Legislature of 1885, known as the Anti-Treating law. While the Senator is right in having the Act stricken from the Statutes, practically it makes no difference whether it is repealed or not. It was wholly ignored by the public and openly violated by those whose duty it is to enforce it. It has been, since its passage, a dead letter to the Statutes, and doubtless it would have been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court if anyone had cared enough about it to take it before that tribunal.—Silver State.

Burial of Edward Murphy.

The Episcopal Church was crowded yesterday at the burial of Ed. Murphy. The choir sang "Go Burial thy Sorrows," "Faded Leaves" and the solemn Burial Anthem. The services at the grave, which were very impressive, were conducted by the Knights of Pythias Lodge. The following were the pall bearers: E. R. Elrod, Garry Wright, George Cagwin, Adam Fife, John Ellis, Fred Gelinas, Mayo Greenlaw and J. Doane. A long line of carriages followed the remains to the grave.
